For The Church

Have you ever been wronged by someone? I'm sure you have, we all have, haven't we? Being wronged by someone is something that stirs up a lot of emotions in our human bodies. We feel anger, betrayal, rejection, and many other emotions. We long for revenge. We crave retribution. We are told by the world that when someone treats you wrong you hit them back, but harder than they hit you.

Is it okay to be angry? I believe it is. Jesus got angry, and yet he never committed a sin. Jesus went into the temple courts and flipped over tables and drove out the money changers with whips. If that is not a display of anger then I don't know what is, but Jesus never sinned. Jesus wasn't wrong in what he did that day in the temple. Jesus was angered at people that were defiling his Father's house (the temple).

When someone hurts you or wrongs you in any way, what is the proper reaction. Let me remind you of a story from Jesus's life that shows us how he handled a situation like this. It's the night of Jesus's arrest before he goes to be crucified. He is sharing a meal with his disciples, and he knows that he is about to be betrayed by Judas. He is about to be wronged in such a way that it will cause Jesus to die on the cross. Jesus knows this beforehand. So, what does Jesus do? Jesus washes feet.

Washing feet is an act of complete humility. Picture the Messiah kneeling before Judas, gently drying his toes with a towel; John the disciple said at that moment he showed the full extent of his love to the very end. Let's live like Jesus did and love like Him.
